French Premier Coming to U. S. Over Arms Deal

PARIS (AP) — Foreign Minister Christian Pincau was flying to the United States today to press French objections to U. S. and British arms shipments to Tunisia.

Unofficial sources in London said British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd might join Pincau and Secretary of State Dulles for the talks in Washington.

"The aim of my trip is to ameliorate things, to limit the damage," Pincau said.

"It is necessary to think of the existence and the strengthening of the Atlantic Pact. We intend to insist on finding a system which will assure the solidarity of NATO in all fields."

He said he would tell Dulles about "the unreasonableness of the (French) government and show how lively the reaction of public and parliamentary opinion has been about the delivery of arms to Tunisia."

Pincau is scheduled to see Dulles in Washington tomorrow.

Informed sources said Pincau will call for an end to the arms shipments and full U. S. support for France in revolt-ridden Algeria.

The sources said Dulles most likely will refuse to give any guarantee which in effect would give France control over U. S. relations with Tunisia, a former French protectorate.

Although the United States may support France in the forthcoming U. N. debate on Algeria, the informants said, it is also unlikely Washington will extend unconditional support for French actions in Algeria.

France's main fear is that the Tunisian arms will turn up in the hands of the Algerian rebels, with whom Tunisia's government is sympathetic.

Negotiations on French supply of arms to Tunisia were held up by the monthlong Cabinet crisis which followed the fall of Maurice Bourgès-Maunier's government. The United States and Britain decided to go ahead with a token shipment—820 semiautomatic rifles, submachine guns and Bren guns and ammunition—to keep pro-Western Premier Habib Bourguiba from accepting Soviet-bloc arms from Egypt.

Body of Missing Hunter Is Found

FOREST CITY, Ark. (AP) — The body of a 73-year-old deer hunter, missing since last Tuesday, was found yesterday in flooded woods 15 miles northwest of here.

Conor Walter Stevens Jr., said W. A. Sausman of South Bend Ind., died of a heart attack Tuesday, the day he was reported missing. The body was found sitting upright in knee-deep water.

Civil Defense and National Guard personnel searched several days for Sausman, a retired tool and die maker, when he failed to return to camp Tuesday afternoon. Sausman had been hunting with Joe Young of Parkin.

Sausman's son, Dean, also of South Bend, organized the search party which found the missing man.

Benson Says He Has No Plans to Quit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Benson, back from a survey trip around the world, says he has no plans to leave the cabinet.

Returning here Saturday, Benson appeared untroubled by attacks on the administration's farm program, and about reports that some Midwest Republicans want his resignation.

He told newsmen in a plenary interview that he regards the farm program as economically sound. And he challenged anyone to offer a better program, saying he would be glad to consider it.

As for the report he is about to step out of the post he has held for nearly five years, Benson said:

"I have no plans to leave the cabinet. I've been busy with a program to expand exports of American farm products and we hope we have been effective salesmen."

The stated purpose of his 24-day global journey, which took him to 12 nations, was to seek ways to expand U. S. commercial farm exports and to observe surplus disposal operations.

In a formal statement after he left his plane, Benson said he would recommend to President Eisenhower a year's extension of the law under which government-held surplus farm commodities may be sold, bartered or given away abroad. He also said he would ask at least another billion dollars in authority to do this.

Criticism was leveled at Benson for taking members of his family.

Baptists Offer Key Post to Dr. Whitlow

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Baptist Convention's 60-member executive committee was scheduled to meet here today to discuss a plan for expansion of Ouachita Baptist College to put before delegates tomorrow.

A proposal to expand the physical plant of the Arkadelphia school is expected to come before 2,000 delegates who will attend the 3-day annual convention.

And a special committee is expected to recommend that a branch of Ouachita be established at Little Rock.

However, no funds for expansion of Ouachita are included in the proposed 1958 budget.

Dr. S. A. Whitlow, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Arkadelphia, was expected to tell the executive board today whether he would accept the post of executive secretary of the board and convention treasurer.

Whitlow was offered the job after the recent resignation of Dr. Ben Bridges, who held the post for 20 years.

Convention speakers will include Rep. Brooks Hays (D-Ark.), president of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Man Loses Race With a Horsemen

By DWIGHT L. JONES

ROOSEVELT, Utah (AP) — The results of that 150-mile horse- versus-man marathon that ended yesterday apparently didn't settle much. The exhausted foot racer who lost wants to try it again next year.

"I'll be back again," 24-year-old Brigham Young University student Albert Ray of St. Albans, N.Y., said as he hobbled around on swollen feet.

Ray had to give up 50 miles from here on the Salt Lake City to Roosevelt run. He was bushed and the two horsemen he tried to beat were near the finish line.

The race began in the Utah capital city Friday morning and ended 57 hours and 15 minutes later. It snowed at times and the mercury dropped under freezing.

The grueling "marathon" that was supposed to settle an old Western argument about which is faster — man or mount — ended when 70-year-old cowboy Roy Hatch and co-rider Ray Hall, 18, both of Roosevelt, trotted their steeds down the main street last night and broke a ribbon stretched across an intersection.

The two saddle sore cowpokes indicated they would be happy to ride again in 1958. Then they went to bed.

Indians, children, tourists, race officials and spectators doubled this town's 2,000 population to be on hand for the finish.

In the welcoming committee was Ray's runner. When he couldn't make it the last 50 miles here he piled into a car and whizzed past the riders.

Ray had started the marathon with 18-year-old Terry Jensen of Idaho Falls, Idaho, another student at BYU in Provo, Utah. Jensen withdrew after the first day with a tight tendon.

Raid All Clubs or None, Judge Says

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Municipal Judge Robert W. Laster told officers today that he would take "a dim view" of raiding a few private clubs in Pulaski county without including all.

The raids were made Saturday night and cases of four men charged with violation of state liquor laws were passed until Dec. 3.

Laster told Deputy Sheriffs and Alcoholic Beverage Control Board agents that all private clubs, including country clubs, should be raided if any were.

Russians Brag of 'Decisive Missile' in War

By RED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet marshal says Russia has intercontinental missiles that would be decisive in any future war. But one American scientist says Russia's satellite launchings provided only partial evidence that Russia has such weapons.

Meanwhile, the Martin Co. said in Baltimore — It is establishing a new division to speed arrangements for launching an American satellite under the Navy-directed Project Vanguard. The Martin Co. is prime contractor for the Vanguard satellite's three-stage launching rocket.

In the political realm, the Democratic Advisory Council declared, "The about-face of the Soviets to establish themselves as masters of the space around us must be met by all-out efforts of our own."

The Russian missile boast was made by Artillery Marshal S. Barentsev yesterday in an article in the Communist newspaper Pravda. Barentsev's article followed the line taken by other Russian military leaders in celebrating Soviet Artillery Day.

Barentsev said long-range missiles give the Soviet Union the ability to smash any aggressor anywhere and under any conditions.

Another artilleryman, Marshal S. S. Varelov, said Russia has ready a vast array of modern weapons, "including atomic, thermonuclear hydrogen and long-range rockets capable of destroying enemy targets at distances unimaginable at the end of World War II."

Rules Owner Responsible in Accident

By ADREN COOPER

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court today said that the owner of a motor vehicle may be guilty of involuntary manslaughter in a traffic death even though he was not in a vehicle involved in the accident.

However, in the particular case before it, the court granted the owner a new trial on the ground of improper evidence.

The case arose from the death of W. L. Misur in the collision of his pickup truck and a loaded log truck driven by Alvin Lee Stacy. The collision occurred about three miles east of Rogers on Highway 12 on Jan. 9, 1957.

A Benton Circuit Court jury convicted Stacy and Elmer Rusher, the owner of the truck, of involuntary manslaughter and set sentence for each at three years in prison with the recommendation that the sentences be suspended. The circuit court suspended two years of Stacy's sentence and one year of Rusher's sentence. Both appealed.

Although ruling that a non-driver may be convicted of manslaughter under certain circumstances, the Supreme Court granted Rusher a new trial on ground that certain improper evidence was admitted at the trial. Stacy's conviction was upheld.

The Supreme Court said that General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Motor Co., of Hot Springs, defendants in a personal injury suit, were entitled to examine parts of an automobile which the plaintiff contended were defective.

Troops Leave Only Solution Says Faubus

By The Associated Press

Gov. Orval Faubus said in an interview yesterday that the only solution to the Little Rock integration deadlock is the withdrawal of the nine Negro students from Central High School.

He also said little ground for negotiation, and said Federal troops probably will stay at Central until the end of this school year.

Faubus is recuperating here from a minor illness.

Other opinions he expressed during the 2-hour interview in Hot Springs with Reuben Morin of The Associated Press:

1. Opposition to school integration "is stronger now" than when federal troops arrived at Little Rock Sept. 24 to protect the six Negro girls and three boys at Central.

2. Former Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell was "fired because of the bad advice or misinformation he gave the President about Little Rock," such as the sending of troops there for political reasons.

3. There is little or no contact now between himself and the White House or the Southern Governors Conference.

4. "There must have been someone" at the White House who hoped for the failure of a compromise worked out by Southern governors and President Eisenhower.

Faubus said feeling in Little Rock are economic boycott and counter-boycotts between Negroes and whites in various sections of the state, he said.

Gruesome Tale Unfolds With Discovery of 10 Human Heads in Home

Red Leaders to Prague to Talk Unity

By HAROLD K. MILKS

MOSCOW (AP) — Leaders of the Communist world headed for Prague today to continue round table conferences on Red solidarity.

A series of Moscow discussions apparently aimed at greater Communist unity ended last night with a Kremlin banquet. Soviet Party Secretary Nikita Khrushchev and Communist China's Mao Tse-tung both spoke, but the content of their speeches was not disclosed immediately.

A proclamation of Communist solidarity was expected after the Prague sessions, which probably will begin after the funeral today of Czech President Antonin Zapotocky.

The Communist leaders came to Moscow for the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution. Western observers believed their main business was transacted here, and that the Prague sessions would be largely formalities.

Soviet President Klementi Y. Voroshilov arrived yesterday in Prague for the state funeral of apoplexy, who died last week of a heart ailment. Prague radio said other Communist leaders were on their way to the Czech capital.

Western diplomats believe the Moscow and Prague sessions probably point toward greater cooperation among Communist parties and on government levels—politically, economically and militarily.

Increased Chinese influence in the Communist world was seen in the prominence given Mao's speeches and statements in Moscow.

Bolar Among Group at SCS Conference

Max Bolar returned Tuesday from a twelve-day trip to New York State and Massachusetts to attend a meeting of twenty-five Soil Conservation Service foresters, each representing a different state in the nation. Four southern states were represented, as well as other states as far west as California and Oregon.

After arriving in Boston the twenty-five delegates went by a chartered bus to a lodge in The Harvard Forest, about seventy miles away. This isolated lodge is one of Harvard University's many research institutions and museums in scientific fields, some of which are located in other states and in foreign countries. It is in three thousand acres of forest which were taken over by the university shortly after 1900 to be used for research and experimental purposes by Harvard post-graduate students and professors in biology and related scientific fields. Foresters in the Soil Conservation Service have been privileged to go there also for research work, either individually or collectively, by invitation. One project of mutual interest to the School of Science at Harvard and to the SCS is watershed work.

Adjoining the large lodge is a museum which is unusually complete from the standpoint of forestry. It required ten years to build the intricate miniature models of forest life which show the tree and brush cycle of the pre-Colonial woods of New England, before the 1900's. The Harvard Forest itself, originally this type of timber, is now reclaimed land which was fairly recently only abandoned, cleared farmlands. In the early 1800's many farmers here left their farms and traveled west because their land was too rocky and unproductive. These abandoned farms were gradually taken by the growth of beech, birch, maple and white pine, and a large percentage of this reforested land now comprises The Harvard Forest. Some of the first forestry experiments in the United States began in The Harvard Forest around the beginning of the 20th century.

During their stay there the SCS foresters went on field trips into the woods during the day with the four Harvard professors there for this meeting, returning at night to the lodge, where discussions were held in the library. One of the many interesting features of these forums was a showing of colored slides made by Dr. Roup of Harvard on the flora and fauna of Greenland. These pictures were made by him on a recent trip there.

After their stay in The Harvard Forest, the foresters visited several other points of interest. They went by chartered bus to see a typical Massachusetts farm wood-land in North Adams. Some of the farms in this vicinity are approximately two hundred years old. From there they went to Saratoga Springs, New York to see the state nursery, and to Warrensburg to see the Lathrop Pack Experimental Forest. After a six hour ride through the Adirondacks, the delegates arrived in Syracuse to attend the annual convention of the Society of American Foresters, which was in session for two days.

Browns, Giants Moving Slowly Toward Titles

By DON WEISS
Of The Associated Press

Step by step, Cleveland's comebacking Browns and New York's defending champion Giants are moving straight toward a Dec. 16 showdown for the Eastern Division title in the National Football League.

In the Western Division, it should be so simple? With the San Francisco 49ers turned to vagabonds on the road, Detroit rolling again behind Bobby Layne, Baltimore's Colts apparently back in stride and even the Los Angeles Rams putting into contention, it's anybody's guess in the West.

And there remain only four weeks of the pro season to unscramble the mess.

The mess looks like this after the eighth round of the 12-week NFL season yesterday.

San Francisco, Baltimore and Detroit tied for first place with 5-3 records and Los Angeles a notch behind at 4-4. The Lions, with Layne clicking on 17 of 21 passes in the first half alone, routed San Francisco 31-10, the 49ers second straight whipping on a road trip that will keep them away from home for another two weeks. The Colts, scoring 18 points in the fourth quarter, downed the Chicago 3-5 Bears, 29-14. The revived Rams down 24-3 at the half, rallied behind vet Norm Van Brocklin and ace rookie Jon Arnett to defeat useless Green Bay 31-27.

In the East, the Browns stumbled a bit in a 30-30 tie with Washington but with six victories, a loss and a tie they still hold a half game lead over New York 6-2 after a 13-0 blanking of Philadelphia. Pittsburgh and Chicago Cardinals were idle, their games having been put back to Dec. 22.

Cleveland came off a 10-point deficit, with four minutes left to tie the pesky Redskins. The punchless Eagles outplayed the Giants on the attack, but New York's defense turned back four Philly threats, one that reached to within six inches of the goal line.

Matter of FACT

When Napoleon was deposed by the French in 1814, he went to the island of Elbe, seven miles from the Italian mainland. Napoleon was given Elbe and had full sovereign rights over it. He had several houses on the island, but his palace was in the hills behind the capital, Portoferraio. In 1815, after only one year, Napoleon left the island to enter upon his final campaign, ending in his defeat at Waterloo.

A&M Takes Arkansas College Title

By JOHN R. STARR
Of The Associated Press

For all intents and purposes, Arkansas A&M won the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference championship Saturday.

There remains the formality of playing Ouachita again this week, but anyone who watched the Boll Weevils roll over the Tigers 42-6 Saturday does not doubt the Aggies can turn the trick again.

So the College of the Ozarks, which battled gamely from behind to beat State Teachers 21-13 Saturday night, got nothing but the thrill of winning from the victory. The Mountaintop, who have not lost since A&M beat them in the season's opener, have had second place clinched for several weeks and they will just have to settle for that.

A&M, then, will start getting ready for the Rice Bowl game against Arkansas Tech in Stuttgart, Dec. 6. Presumably, Coach Willis Leslie and his staff, scouted the Wonder Boys in Russellville been decided, McMurray heads the Selection and Game Committee of the National Junior College Athletic Assn.

Thornton has completed its third straight season unbeaten. Texarkana has not lost this year in junior college play.

Saturday night, but it is doubtful if they liked what they saw.

For Tech, which is fast building a respectable record after losing its first four games, mauled Delta (Miss.) State 14-0 and this, same Delta team pinned A&M's only loss on the Weevils 14-13 earlier in the season.

Southern State turned back winless Hendrix 19-0 in Saturday night's other game involving A&M teams. Henderson was idle last week.

Halfback, Larry Laceywell and Carl Preston scored two touchdowns each in A&M's rout of Hendrix. Preston, the brilliant, little freshman from Pine Bluff, scampered 91 yards with the second half kickoff and scored again. Later from the eighth, Laceywell scored in the first period on a 3-yard run and in the third on a 3-yard run by halfback Ted Jackson got the other Weevils scores.

Ouachita's tally came when Joe Young blocked an A&M punt and recovered it in the end zone. Eddie Meador, Tech's great halfback, scored both Wonder Boy touchdowns against Delta. He swept right and eluded two tacklers and rambled 22 yards for a score on the opening play of the third quarter and then went 44 yards on the same play with just over a minute left in the same period.

In between Meador's bursts, Tech got a safety when Delta's Lacy Chapman backed out of the end zone on a punt attempt. Ozarks was in serious trouble for three periods against underdog State Teachers but the Mountaintop pulled the game out of the fire when quarterback Bobby Johnson loosened his passing arm in the fourth period.

Teachers took a 13-0 halftime lead on a 44-yard run by fullback John Sloan in the first quarter and an 8-yard dash by quarterback Bill Hoskyn in the second period. Ozarks fullback Jim Woolsey scored from the four in the third period, then Johnson hit end Bill Edwards with a 22-yard touchdown pass early in the fourth and, after Bill Riebeck added his second straight conversion the Mountaintopers were ahead to stay.

SMU, Porker Game Was for Spectators

DALLAS (AP) — A spread formation that has become the most exciting play of the Southeast Conference football season and Don Meredith the sophomore sensation, arrived at Southern Methodist at the same time.

The two go together like bread and butter and they're causing more talk than anything to strike the conference in a long time. The way things are working out SMU may become a hot bowl choice.

Just what the spread, something Coach Bill Meek digs out when he has thin material, can do for football was demonstrated Saturday. Wit Meredith, the cocky young man from Mt. Vernon, operating it, this formation swept up 246 yards and four touchdowns in a 27-22 defeat of Arkansas.

It also brought to the Southwest Conference memories of those glamorous days of the thirties when this league was known as the "passing" in the country. Southern Methodist tried 29 passes and Arkansas trying to meet the test, threw 22. Forty passes in one game was about an average a couple of decades ago. No it's a sensation.

The result was that the SMU-Arkansas game was the best from the spectator standpoint of any played around here in years.

Actually, though, the spread was brought in by Meek because "we are better able to use the assets we have with it, it is good for throwing, running and receiving and because I had Meredith."

The spread bloomed the night SMU played Texas A&M. It didn't win that game but Meredith, who isn't cocky in an offensive way but is very confident, told Meek before they played Arkansas: "Don't worry coach, we'll get them this time. Old Donald wasn't right for A&M but he will be today."

Right! Meredith passed for 230 yards and two touchdowns, ran for 67 and two more, kicked an extra point, and even gave Arkansas two points—he surrendered a safety to get his team out of trouble in the last minute.

The SMU coach said he considered Meredith's efforts "the finest sophomore performance I ever saw."

In the game with Arkansas SMU was using two quarterbacks at times and it was quite puzzling to the Razorbacks. One quarterback would be under the center back and the other at tailback. Meek explained that this allowed a hand-off a direct passback. "It put more pressure on the defense," Meek commented.

Approximately one-fourth of the U. S. population today is plagued by either water shortage or poor water, says Frank Doggett, North Carolina soil conservationist.

Arkansas Tech Edged by Tennessee

COOKEVILLE, Tenn. (UP) — Tennessee Tech came from behind to squeeze past Arkansas State 7-6 on quarterback Doug Caldwell's touchdown and conversion Saturday night.

Caldwell scored in the second period when he carried 25 yards on a delayed buck. He then ran wide to the right for the extra point that won the game.

Arkansas State scored earlier in the second period on a 45-yard drive. Halfback Terry Robinson carried the ball to the one on a 23 yard run then crashed over on the next play for the touchdown.

The conversion try was low. Most of the game was spent at midfield as the teams failed to generate a drive on the muddy field.

peared in October 1953. Chicago police planned to send detectives to question Gein about the butcher slaying of Judith Mae Anderson, whose torso was found in Lake Michigan last summer.

Authorities also were expected to question Gein about the disappearance of 8-year-old Gerla Jean Wecker, who vanished from her Fort Atkinson, Wis., home May 1, 1947, while picking flowers for a May basket.

Sheriff's deputies said Gein was friendly enough with his neighbors but the only one who ever visited him was a 16-year-old boy who was in Gein's home as late as last Saturday.

Mrs. Worden's body was found early Sunday.

Townpeople described Gein as "peculiar." One storekeeper said whenever he gave change to Gein "I put it on the counter rather than touch his hand."

Gein's farm home appears neat and well maintained from the outside, but investigators said the inside was "a pile of junk."

on his trip. Traveling with the secretary were Mrs. Benson and two of his daughters — Beverly, 20, and Bonnie, 17. Several Agriculture Department trade exports also were in the party.

One of the critics was Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler who told an audience in Parsons, Kan., that "it is not acceptable morality in public service when the taxpayer has to pick up the check for the travels of an official's family." He referred specifically to Benson.

When he left Oct. 22, Benson's office said he would pay the cost of food and hotels for his daughters, but that he would not pay for their transportation because there would be no extra cost in their using the military plane assigned to carry him on his mission.

However, after Benson returned Saturday, his office announced he is reimbursing the government for the cost of transporting his two daughters. Benson's office said this was in line with arrangements made before his trip began.

Truman Has Suggestions for Democrats

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Democratic party organization listens to former President Truman it may groom a 1960 presidential candidate who can appeal to the Northern big city vote without writing off the entire South.

Truman has told friends here he envisions a campaign somewhat similar to his successful race in 1948. In that year, Truman lost four Southern states to a Southern States Right party because of his refusal of civil rights legislation.

As do many other national leaders of the party, Truman believes the 1960 Democratic nominee must stand firmly for enforcement of the Supreme Court's school integration opinion.

But if his remarks are being interpreted correctly by his associates, Truman would rather see as a nominee a man whose support of this position is accepted without fanfare than one whose selection would wave a red flag in the face of the South.

The difference is illustrated by Truman's friends — but not the former President himself — as lying between the possible candidates of Democratic Governors Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey and C.

Mayer to Try to Win More Money Tonight

NEW YORK (AP)—David Mayer has a new word for quiz program contestants on Twenty-One (NBC-TV). They're "generalists"—not specialists.

At least he thinks of himself as a "generalist." Tonight Mayer, with $45,000 in winnings so far, returns for another round with Paul Bain. He could go as high as $87,000—or as low as $3,000.

Mayer, 36, is a pipe-smoking, mustached psychologist who operates his own research firm in New York. In an age of the specialist and the cautious he has been a generalist and an adventurer.

No, he hasn't shot any lions. But since he left his native Easton, Pa., at 16 to enter Harvard he never has been in a hurry to settle into a groove.

At Harvard he couldn't settle into the then prescribed four courses a year but took six—and sat in on another dozen. He finally settled on psychology because "knowledge of why people behave as they do gives you a clue to everything."

"I don't think there was anything unusual about what I did," he says today. "I didn't know what I was looking for myself—who I was and what the world was like."

In the Army during World War II he served as an enlisted man classification specialist. The most agonizing job he ever had was off the Normandy beachhead, working nights on a ship to help select replacements for the preceding day's casualties.

After the war he taught psychology at New York University for a while. He married and became the father of a son, now 8. In 1950 he packed his family off to Paris for a year where he taught sociology and did translating. The next year he was traveling around Liberia as an applied psychologist for the U. N., helping to set up an educational system.

Two years ago, he formed his own motivation research firm. "To many people specialize too soon in life," says Mayer. "I know that eventually you have to specialize in something if you're going to make a living in our society. But too many began to specialize too soon."

Whatever Mayer wins on Twenty-One, two things are certain: part of the winnings will go to expand his firm; another part to Harvard University.

Committee to Study Defense Spending Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate House Economic subcommittee set out today to study federal spending programs at a time of upward pressure on defense expenditures.

Nearly 100 of the nation's leading economists were standing by to discuss their views in two weeks of hearings scheduled by a fiscal policy subcommittee headed by Rep. Mills (D-Ark.).

The idea already has been published by the subcommittee in a 1,000-page compendium as a preliminary to public panel discussions.

No over-all conclusion was apparent in their formal views. But all were agreed that the explosive growth in government expenditures since 1953 has become a major factor in the course of the nation's economy.

Any chance of tax reduction will be closely tied to the level of federal spending at the coming session, and many Congress members feel the chance for a general tax cut is slight.

With the administration calling for possibly a billion-dollar increase next year over the current defense budget of around 38 billion dollars, there has been speculation for a tax-cut bill next year.

The Mills subcommittee, after extensive hearings last June, came out strongly against tax cuts until federal spending is curtailed and new spending programs eliminated.

In its report, the subcommittee cautioned that federal spending programs like old-age assistance, Social Security benefits and highway construction have built-in expansion features which will automatically boost spending levels under existing law unless carefully watched.

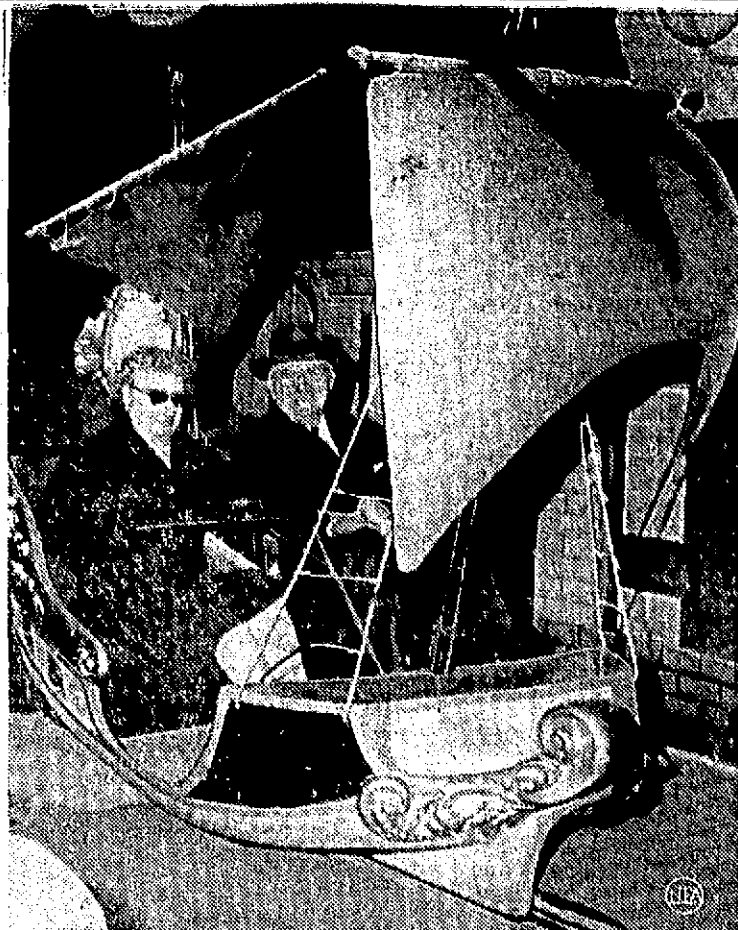

Flu Deaths in Nation Hit 800

CHICAGO (UP)—Four persons have died in Wyoming during an epidemic of influenza-type disease, and the national total climbed to more than 800 deaths from flu and its complications.

The Wyoming Health Department said during the week and the epidemic affected more than 26,000 persons, or about one of every 12 residents of the state.

In other sections, Minnesota and Georgia health officials reported Asian flu and other types of influenza on the decline. Last week, however, Georgia reported 32 flu-related deaths and Minnesota reported 35.

The United Press counted a total of at least 811 deaths blamed on flu and its after-effects since Asian influenza first hit the nation last summer. New York had the highest toll with 133 fatalities, following by

DOROTHY DIX The Narrow, Bigoted Man Can Make Life Miserable

Dear Dorothy Dix: Vernon and I are engaged. We're deeply in love, and congenial in some respects, but he is opposed to dancing, moviegoing, card-playing—in fact, any sort of amusement or recreation. I, on the contrary, have been brought up to enjoy all these things as part of social life to be indulged in with moderation.

I'd be willing to give up some pleasures, of course, but half-measures won't do. Vernon won't compromise at all. I fear for the future, too. What will our children think? Will they share their father's view that I'm a wicked, worldly woman or will they be convinced, as I am, that their father is narrow and bigoted?

MYRA
Dear Myra: One of the essential factors in a happy marriage is congeniality. Love alone isn't enough to bridge the gulf between two people. There can be no happiness in a home where husband and wife have diametrically opposite habits, tastes and points of view on everything in life.

You and Vernon would make a big mistake in marrying, one that you'll bitterly regret. You would be forever haunted by the ghost of his disapproval of everything you do, and he'll be forever stalked by the specter of your contempt. Better each of you to your own kind.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am to be married at Christmas. Recently I discovered that my husband-to-be has been married, and has not been divorced. I'm not sure whether to reveal my secret to him or ignore the situation.

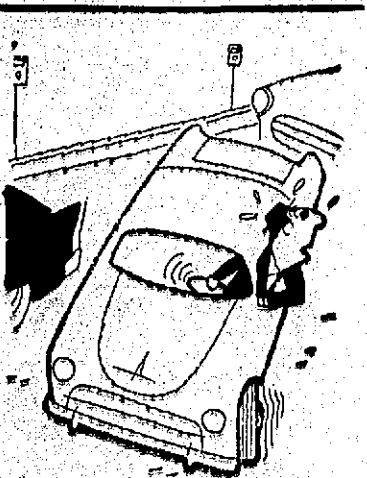

NORA
Dear Nora: How can you ignore bigamy? Are you naive or so man-crazy that you'll take a "husband" on any terms?

Dear Dorothy Dix: My father has some absurd idea that I must go out with the family whenever they're invited to dinner. Last night a boy called to take me to the movies, but we had a dinner invitation so I had to keep that. I think it's unfair. Father also says I can't go on a date unless I have two days' notice.

S. S.
Dear S. S.: Dad is right on both counts. A considerate boy would be glad to give you two days' notice (the exceptional circumstance under, I am sure, be given special consideration by Dad), and you wouldn't be seriously concerned

Can Estimate Expense If Necessary

WASHINGTON (AP)—The head of the Internal Revenue Service says that where necessary estimates may be used in reporting expense account items for income tax purposes.

But Director Russell C. Harrington, asked about reports from his service that the little taxpayer can forget the whole thing, replied, "such reports are not correct."

He did agree, in a copyrighted interview with the magazine U. S. News & World Report, that "generally speaking, yes" it is the people with large expense accounts on whom the service will check carefully.

"A revenue agent isn't going to spend a lot of time on small amounts," he said at one point. Ever since 1921, the law has required that an employee who incurs business expenses for which his employer repays him must report as income the money he received in payment. He then may deduct his expenses. But that requirement has been generally ignored by many with small expense accounts, and the revenue service has not complained.

The revenue service has changed 1957 income tax forms to require listing totals of these items on the form itself instead of only on a separate sheet of paper. That led to reports on an intensive crackdown, which IRS officials sought informally to contradict with word that little change was anticipated.

Harrington gave some backing to that view even while describing the reports as incorrect. He was asked whether agents would be lenient in going over the 1957 returns "for omissions of the kind that people have been making for years."

"There will be no change in that for the 1957 returns," Harrington replied. At another point he said, "Now we have put people on notice. So, beginning with 1958, we will be in a position to adopt a stricter attitude in examining these expense accounts."

Fugitive Ylays as Police Close in GREENEVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A fugitive from a murder charge who played a guitar for eight eph-lives while police closed in on him was fatally wounded trying to shoot his way out of the trap last night.

Sheriff John D. Solomon said Paul Norton, 25, entered the home of neighbors near here while police in three states were seeking him for the slaying of his mother-in-law Nov. 7.

He held four adults and four children in the Arthur Connor home in terror for an hour as he sat with a heavy-gauge shotgun across his lap.

He set the gun aside—but close to hand—for a little while when he saw a gull. He played for his terror-stricken audience.

Someone had tipped the sheriff that Norton was at the Connor home. Two deputy sheriffs and two state highway patrolmen circled the house and one of them called out: "Paul, give up."

Norton ran out the back door of the house and an officer called to him again, 336, turned around and fired his shotgun at the officer. All four officers returned the fire.

Norton had been sought for the shooting of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Jones, parents of his estranged wife, Mrs. Jones, 34, was killed. Jones was wounded but recovered.

"What kind of a cheap joint is this?" The fat man's loose lips curled sneeringly.

CHAPTER 1

The Harbor House is a small hotel in a resort town called Lakeport, located about midway between Cleveland and Toledo on the south Erie shore. The food there is excellent, especially the fresh-caught pickerel and perch, and a bartender named Otto makes the best dry martinis in northern Ohio.

Late on a hot afternoon in August I left Toledo and decided that I could drive to Cleveland before midnight and still have time to stop at the Harbor House for dinner. It was six o'clock when I parked behind the hotel in an area reserved for guests and entered the cool, dusky bar. When Otto saw me, he smiled and began to drop ice into a stirring glass.

"It has been quite a while since we've seen you, Mr. Bennett," he spoke with a faint Teutonic accent. "Last June," I said. He had cool blue eyes, a smooth fair skin and blond hair. His shoulder were lean and wide beneath his white jacket and he moved with a sort of quick military precision. "Across his left cheek ran a strip of adhesive surgical tape."

"He began to still gently, and looked up at me with a faint smile. 'You might be interested to know that I'm attending night school now, learning a profession.' 'You've got a profession, Otto?' 'I said, 'and you're good at it. What's the new one?' 'Optometry,' he said seriously. 'I don't want to be a bartender all my life. I've saved enough money to attend a school in Cleveland, full time. I only go to one night class a week now.'"

"I'll miss you when I pass through Lakeport," I said, "but I wish you luck." I shifted my 190 pounds to a bar stool and sipped at the drink. I said to him, "What happened to your face?"

"He looked up from his lemon slicing, touched the tape on his cheek and shrugged faintly. 'Just one of the hazards of my present profession.' 'Somebody knife you?' 'He shook his head. 'No. It happened yesterday. A customer asked for a certain brand of Scotch, which we do not stock. He told him I was sorry and he ordered rye. Then he accused me of shortchanging him. He began quite abusive. He threw a glass at me. I didn't duck quickly enough.'"

"A charming character," I said. "Then what?" "He shrugged once more. 'Nothing. He left.' He sighed. 'If only people would not drink too much.' 'Has he been back?' 'Otto's lips tightened for an instant. 'He's staying here at the hotel. I can't avoid him. He says he came here to fish, but all he does is drink.' He shook his head disapprovingly."

"At that moment two men entered the bar from the street door. Otto's expression grew wary and he shot me a significant glance. The men climbed onto stools beside me. The nearest one was broad and heavy with a fleshy red face, a short blunt nose, a wide, loose mouth. He was wearing a short-sleeved white shirt and white duck trousers held up by both red and white suspenders and a self-lightly buckled around his bulging stomach. He was probably between 50 and 60 years old."

"His companion was younger but almost the same size, with a broad white face and black hair showing over his ears beneath a white panama. He had a long nose, sharp black eyes and an underslung jaw like a hog's, and he was chewing absently on a toothpick. He wore a gray checkered suit, too light for his round body, and his small feet were crowded into pointed black shoes."

"The man next to me pounded the bar. 'You got any O'Mara's Scotch yet?' 'No, sir,' Otto said quietly. 'I'm sorry.' 'What kind of cheap joint is this?' he turned to the bartender. 'No O'Mara's Scotch here.' Otto silently mopped the bar with a cloth. "What kind of a cheap joint is this?" The fat man's loose lips curled sneeringly.

Bar Ambrose shrugged and said wearily. "What did you expect?"

"Yes sir," Otto said.

"Well, well," the man said with heavy sarcasm. "So give us a couple of doubles. And snap it up."

"Yes, sir," Otto said in the same quiet controlled voice.

Otto kept his face carefully composed as he poured the drinks and placed them on the bar. I finished my martini and slid the glass over the bar. The fat man watched. Then he nodded at my glass and said to Otto, "What kind of a fancy drink is that?"

"That is a dry martini," Otto said evenly.

"You don't say!" The fat man's voice was high and mincing.

"Dear me," the pudgy, pale man beside him laughed shortly. Both of them lifted their glasses and drank, making an elaborate business of ignoring me.

"I didn't say anything."

"A youth with a crew cut and wearing a white jacket similar to Otto's appeared in the door leading to the lobby. He gazed around the bar and called loudly, 'Mr. Bennett. Paging Mr. Bennett.'"

"I slid off the stool and walked over to him. 'My name's Bennett, son.'"

"Telephone, sir."

"I handed him a quarter, went to the phone and said, 'Yes.'"

"A female voice said, 'Mr. James Bennett?'"

"Here."

"One moment, please. Cleveland is calling."

I waited. Then a soft, familiar voice said, "Jim?"

"Yes, Sandy."

Sandy Hollis has worked for me since I first took over the Cleveland branch of the agency. She has a nice laugh. Everything about Sandy is nice. "I knew it," she said, laughing.

"Knew what, you dope?"

"That I'd catch you at the Harbor House. You always stop there this time of day when you're returning from Toledo."

"What's up?"

"You'll love this," she said. "Right after you called and said you were heading home, the big boss phoned from New York."

"Listen, my martini is getting warm."

"In that case, I'll make it quick. The boss wants you to see a man named Hugo Howell."

"It seems that Hugo wrote directly to the New York office and enclosed a check. It must have been a lovely-sized check, because the boss wants you to see Hugo right away."

"Okay," I said impatiently. "So what'll I see Hugo?"

Sandy laughed again. "I'm saving you a trip by calling you now."

"How's that again?"

"Jim, it seems that Mr. Howell is right there in Lakeport—at the Harbor House. The boss phoned him there today after he received Mr. Howell's letter and check, and told him that our Cleveland branch manager would contact him personally."

"The way you keep track of me," I said bitterly, "we might as well be married."

"That's an idea," Sandy said. "Her voice suddenly sobered. 'The boss didn't go into details with me, but I gathered that it had something to do with Hugo's son and a woman.'"

"Miss Hollis," I said sternly, "you know the rules of the agency. No divorce work, no—"

New Look for Foreign Aid, Trade Policy

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. foreign trade and aid policy is getting a new look today on the eve of what may become the hottest congressional fight over tariffs in 25 years.

A U.S. State Department official reports the Communist countries have made a new trade and aid agreement with the United States, which is under heavy fire from the strongest gathering of the protectionist class since Smoot-Hawley tariff days.

The White House is expected to ask Congress for a step up in foreign aid next year, citing the missile peril. It is also going to fight hard for a five year extension of the reciprocal trade program, which is under heavy fire from the protectionist class since Smoot-Hawley tariff days.

Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the American Iron & Steel Institute, tells some 2,000 leaders in business, finance, shipping, education and government meeting here for the 44th National Foreign Trade Convention: "Our secret weapon is trade — trade under our system of capitalism and competitive enterprise — accompanied by capital investment and technical aid in undeveloped countries."

Fairless, once head of U. S. Steel, urges the business leaders to see that private capital be the big weapon — not taxpayers' money in the form of government aid.

Foreign traders are meeting at a critical time for their business. The Department of Commerce reports U.S. exports have been declining for the last six months. Part of this is due to a growing inability of other nations to pay for American goods, and part to the increasing competition from German and Japanese manufacturers.

France's faltering franc and England's recently bolstered pound worry traders and international bankers. What the infant common market in Western Europe will do to America's trade there is still in doubt.

Russian trade competition isn't much of a threat yet but some American businessmen think the day is coming when it could be. At home the battle lines are being tightly drawn over the about-to-expire Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act. An increasing number of industries complain of being hurt by foreign competition and clamor for higher tariff or import quota barriers.

The administration, on the other hand, is more anxious with each new Sputnik to build friendlier relations with our allies, even though they be trade competitors. Lower tariffs would do this and the White House hopes so would increased foreign aid.

The other man, the pale, pudgy one, laughed and said to Otto, "Clumsy, isn't he?"

"I looked up from my dabbling and said to him, 'Who do you mean — me or false here?' I jerked my head at his companion, who stood by, waving on his feet. From the corner of one eye I saw that Otto was watching the three of us narrowly."

"The fat man turned slowly to face me, his heavy face red and congested-looking. He glared at me with red-lidded eyes. 'I don't like that,' he said thickly."

"You don't like what?" I asked curiously.

"What you called me, false. I don't like that."

"Sorry," I said and turned away. There is never any point to a bar room argument. My suit could be cleaned and I could get another drink. Besides, I was tired and put some money to contact my prospective client, Mr. Hugo Howell. I headed for the door.

Pianist Recalls Days When It Was Tough

By BOB THOMAS

NEW YORK (AP) — Roger Williams, sensation of the record and concert field, can look back to the time when he literally lived on peanuts in Los Angeles.

"It was during the war," says the handsome, 31-year-old pianist. "I could count on one square meal every week from a friend who had me to dinner on Sundays. In between, things were pretty lean. Some days I'd get by on peanuts alone. Lots of nutrition in peanuts."

Meals are no longer a concern for Roger. His record of "Autumn Leaves" sold 2,600,000, and three of his albums were recently on the best-seller list. His concerts in which he plays longhair as well as pop numbers, are sell-outs. He's a steady guest star on the TV variety shows.

He wears success well. Born in Omaha, he grew up in Des Moines, where his father was minister of the largest United Lutheran Church in the United States. Roger's life has been a peculiar balance — between playing the organ in his father's church and starring on the boxing team, taking a degree in engineering and devoting his life to music.

Married and the father of two girls, Roger practices 8 to 10 hours a day in a room-within-a-room in the basement of his New York home. He came up the hard way, via bars, night clubs and Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts.

How did his father feel about his playing in drinking joints? Roger asked him once. His father's reply: "You take care of them on Saturday night, and I'll take care of them on Sunday."

Two former child movie stars are performing on Broadway in roles that are a far cry from their Hollywood beginnings. Roddy McDowall, "Lassie Come Home," and Dean Stockwell, "The Boy with the Green Hair," are enacting the Leopold-Loeb thrill slayers in "Compulsion."

Anna Maria Albergotti is drawing enthusiastic audiences nightly at the Waldorf-Astoria. June Allyson in "Love for the NBC spec. She had only a six-minute scene from "Our Town." The pay was reportedly $40,000.

Matter of FACT

Mention the name Abigail Smith to anyone today and chances are they've never heard of her. Yet, she was the first mistress of the White House and had the unique distinction of having been the wife of one president of the United States and the mother of another. In 1764, Miss Smith, the daughter of a New England clergyman, married John Adams. In 1797, she gave birth to John Quincy Adams and in 1800 she moved into the still incomplete White House for a short time at the end of her husband's term as president. She died in 1818, six years before her son was elected to the presidency.

Correct procedure for lowering the flag when it is flying at half-mast is to raise it to the top of the staff and then lower it in the usual way.

Took Three Times to Make It Count

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP) — Three times Howard Lawson and Mary Sylvester heard the minister intone, "I now pronounce you man and wife."

Once in the minister's parlor a second time under a street light in rural Mansfield and finally in a car 35 miles from home against the background of "The Star Spangled Banner."

And only the last ceremony—Saturday—really counted.

The trouble could all be laid to read tape and geography. The couple tells it this way:

Howard, of nearby Normal, and Mary of Bloomington decided last Thursday to get married. They drove some 60 miles to Urbana for their blood test and returned to Bloomington for the legal three-day waiting period.

Saturday morning they learned the blood samples had been spilled and they would have to take another test. They did and then went to the Campaign County clerk to pick up the marriage license. But the clerk said there was an error on the certificate. Another dash to the laboratory and then seconds before the noon closing time the clerk issued a marriage license.

Howard and Mary were married Saturday evening by the Rev. F. Roy Doland of Bloomington. But the minister noticed that the license was issued in Campaign County and the ceremony wasn't legal in Bloomington (McClean County).

So the wedding party — bride, groom, minister and two witnesses — drove to Mansfield where the Rev. Doland obliged a second time beneath a street light.

That seemed to take care of everything, so the newlyweds headed back to Bloomington to celebrate.

But at 10:30 Saturday night the Rev. Mr. Doland telephoned and told the couple: Mansfield isn't in Campaign County either — it's six miles short, in Piatt County.

A two-car motor caravan sped to Mahomet, where it was ascertained that the party was on Champaign County soil.

There, in front of Charlie's Market the couple, still in the car, heard the blessed — and legal — words repeated. A patriotic note marked the brief ceremony. A radio at the Star Spangled Banner.

FIVE DIE IN FIRE

MILAN, Italy (UP) — Five persons burned to death Tuesday night at nearby Melegnano when the gas tank of a motorcycle exploded and set fire to a farm house. Authorities said the blast occurred when farmer Angelo Agazzi, 41, used a lighted candle to look into the engine of his cycle which was gutted. Firemen found five charred bodies in the debris.

The tall of a heavy bomber is four stories tall.

Cotton Bowl Plans Are Slowed Down

DALLAS (AP) — The 7-6 defeat of Texas A&M by Rice that prevented the Aggies from sewing up the Southwest Conference championship slowed down Cotton Bowl plans somewhat.

It will be Thanksgiving Day at least before the title can be decided and could be Nov. 30. The Conference champion is host team in the Cotton Bowl.

But it was going to be Nov. 30 before a visiting team could be officially announced anyway because of the status of Navy in Cotton Bowl plans and because of Southeastern Conference rule that prevents any team accepting a bowl bid or an invitation being extended before that date.

It is generally understood that Navy would accept a bowl bid if it beats Army.

Bob Cullen, Cotton Bowl president, said today Mississippi, Tennessee, Mississippi State and Georgia Tech also are still prominent on the list.

Cullen was in Memphis Saturday and saw Mississippi defeat Tennessee 14-7. He said "Tennessee still looks good. It lost nothing in its standing by losing this very fine game. Tennessee would be a good bowl team."

He said Mississippi State could add to its stature if it should defeat Mississippi Nov. 30.

Georgia Tech has lost three games, but they were to top out fits and good games and Cullen said the Yellow Jackets were still under consideration.

Sugar Bowl Happy With Prospects

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Sugar Bowl is quite happy with the sudden turn of football fortunes that pointed Rice toward the Cotton Bowl.

The Sugar Bowl, unofficially wedded to the Southeastern Conference, had faced the problem of finding an opponent for its SEC representative.

The SEC representative probably will come from the Mississippi-Mississippi State winner Nov. 30. Tennessee, victor over State and loser to Mississippi last week, also is in the running.

Russo Favored to Beat Lynch Tonight

NEW YORK (UP) — Danny Russo, young Brooklyn welterweight, is a slight favorite to beat Eddie Lynch of New York again tonight in their return TV fight at St. Nicholas arena.

It will be televised by Dumont at 10 p. m. e.s.t.

Russo, 19, won a split decision over Lynch, 22, in their Aug. 5th brawl which was accompanied by tumult among the spectators — two of whom were sent to a hospital.

Cousy was accidentally kicked in the side of the leg by Philadelphia's Neil Johnston while Boston traded to its 11th consecutive victory Saturday night. Latest reports say Cousy's leg is swollen and a blood clot is feared.

Last night's action was featured by Detroit's 95-91 victory over Philadelphia, which put the Pistons in first place in the Western Division and pushed the Warriors six lengths behind the idle Celtics.

St. Louis defeated the Cincinnati Royals 98-87 on Bob Pettit's field goal with only 10 seconds left, but fell out of the Western lead by 11 per centage points.

In the other game, the Syracuse Nationals beat the Minneapolis Lakers 110-88.

Pettit scored seven of his 24 points in the last minute and a half as the Hawks overcame a Cincinnati lead.

Auburn May Go to Top; Two Bowls All Set

By ED CORRIGAN Of The Associated Press

Out of the carnage that struck down Oklahoma and Texas A&M, Auburn — a team that never before had dared dream of such things — today emerged as the possible national champion of college football.

With an 8-0 record, and 12 straight victories over the past two years, Shug Jordan's Plainsmen remain one of the two major unbeaten — untied teams in the country. Arizona State at Tempe is the other.

Auburn, ineligible for a bowl assignment because it is in bad with the NCAA, still has two games to play against Florida State and Alabama, but neither of these should present any undue difficulty.

This Auburn team is strictly a defensive outfit, and four of its victories have come by the margin of one touchdown, including Saturday's 6-0 squeaker over Georgia. The touchdown came on the only winning pass thrown by the club all season.

Both Oklahoma and Texas A&M bit the dust last week. The Sooners' 7-0 setback at the hands of Notre Dame, of course, was the shocker of the year — the last four years, in fact. The Irish soundly trounced the two previous weeks snapped Oklahoma's 47-game winning streak and also shut the Sooners out for the first time in 123 games.

Texas A&M was sidetracked by Rice, 7-6, and thus had its hopes of wrapping up the Southwest Conference championship for the second straight year toppled, at least temporarily.

Rice and Texas now are in the running, but the Aggies, who couldn't act as Cotton Bowl hosts last Jan. 1 because they were on NCAA probation, still are the favorites. They play Texas in the finals for both teams Thanksgiving Day.

Most of the major bowl positions are settled now. Here is how they stand:

Rose-Ohio State vs. Oregon. Orange-Oklahoma vs. Duke.
